Speech of Colonel Rankin in the Canadian Parliament.

Colonel Arthur Rankin, member of the Canadian Parliament, who it will be remembered, offered his services and was commissioned a Colonel in the Union army just after the breaking out of the rebellion, made a powerful speech against the Military bill of the old defeated Ministry a few days since, from which we take the following extract:

A moment's real reflection, Mr. Speaker, ought to be sufficient to show every honorable member that such a law could have been passed, and that such provisions were necessary in the extremity, and to have enforced them would have been an impossibility. Sir, for us to talk of placing Canada in a state of defence against the power of the United States government is as ridiculous as it is worthless. We have no means of assuring that nation that our intentions are sincere. The army of that nation is but little inferior in discipline to the best armies of Europe; it is superior in intelligence to any army in the world; it is well arm'd and equipped as the army of the United States. It is making daily, at the cost of a daily expenditure greater than the yearly cost of even such an organization, as that proposed by the late government, and in case of emergency its numbers, now exceeding half a million, can be doubled, and the whole could have been recruited in a short time.

It is impossible to talk of deterring ourselves against the government of that country, if disposed to attack us, is simply absurd. But, Mr. Speaker, we have no cause for apprehension. In the first place, I don't believe that we are in any imminent danger of being invaded in the United States, for, though it is a fact, it is because we are connected with Britain, and not on our own account.

Police Intelligence.

DARING ATTEMPT TO ROB.—About half-past nine o'clock yesterday morning, as Senior Leopoldo Yzquierdo, proprietor of the Universal Express and General Commission House No. 40 Exchange place, was passing a house of which he is in charge (No. 23 St. Mark's place), he found two men and a boy in the act of robbing the premises. He seized the boy, but the men, after making a desperate attack upon him with a heavy piece of iron, escaped. Senior Yzquierdo, however, managed to drag the boy, and followed them up till they entered an alley between First and Second avenues, in East Eleventh street, where he was assailed by a woman, who appeared to be the mother of the boy, and some twenty other people, and the boy was rescued from him. He afterwards searched the house and alley in company with policemen, but could discover none of the rascals. The police are on the lookout.
